U.S. COAST GUARD
LORAN-C STATION
ATTU, ALASKA

August 26, 2010

Coast Guard Loran Station Attu

In 1943, Attu LORAN operations were established with the first LORAN-A station at Theodore Point. In 1947, LORAN-A operations were relocated to Casco Cove. In 1960, the station was again relocated to the former Navy weather observatory building. This is our present site, overlooking Massacre Bay. LORAN-C operations were also started that year. In July of 1979, LORAN-A operations were discontinued on Attu. In 1991, Attu became a dual-rated station for the Russian American LORAN chain becoming the first of its type.

LORAN station Attu formerly served as the X-ray secondary transmitting station for the North Pacific LORAN chain which was terminated on February 8, 2010 and the X-ray secondary transmitting station for the Russian American LORAN which was terminated on August 1, 2010.

Attu is the western most of the Aleutian Islands. It is one of the last three isolated, restricted duty LORAN stations, all of which are in Alaska. Of the three stations, Attu is the most remote and most isolated LORAN station. Attu has no native population and relied for many years strictly on Coast Guard Air Station Kodiak for logistics supplies provided every two weeks. These logistics flights, a focal point for the crew, were the station's only tie with the rest of the world for mail, food, supplies, and travel to and from the island. Attu, part of the Aleutian Island Wildlife Refuge, and the areas of fighting during the battle of Attu, earned a listing in the National Register of Historic Places in 1985.
